

MARKETING RESOURCES GUIDE

Non-Congregate Meal Service

More Flexible Options for 2025

Take advantage of the new, flexible,

Non-Congregate meal service. Non-congregate meal service can only be used in locations that are considered rural because of lack of transportation and/or access to a congregate site. Rural areas can now use alternate service models to distribute nutritious meals that are tailored to the needs of the children and communities they serve such as:

- Grab and Go
- Bulk food items for multiple meal days
- Home delivered meals

Use These Resources to Make Summer Meal Service a Success

Get answers with the Guide to non-congregate meal service.

Use the handy Tip sheet for further details for allowable Multi-day meal issuance and Combining Rural Non-Congregate Meal Service with Congregate Meal Service.

Find more resources with the Tool kit for summer meals outreach

Locate underserved areas and potential community site partners

Find out if mobile meals are right for your community.

Summer Electronic Benefit Program

SUN Bucks (Summer EBT) will provide grocery benefits to families of children eligible for free or reduced-price school meals.

Food Safety Guidance

Advise families to follow basic health & safety practices for handling food in the summer and all year long.

Cook to proper temperatures; reheat leftovers to 165° and serve hot

Keep cold foods cold; promptly refrigerate perishables; eat within 7 days

Check "Best By" dates and discard whenever necessary

Augus^{*}

Keep Hands and Surfaces Clean

Hunger Facts: Key findings from a survey of 600 rural families about the difficulties faced when school was out:

- Families in rural areas face increased hunger and hardship in the summer.
- 73% said it's harder to make ends meet during the summer than during the school year.
- Non-congregate summer meals help fill the gap for rural families who face barriers to traditional meal service.
- 72% would be likely to participate in non-congregate meals if they were available in their communities.

